THE UNION FOR 5TH COMPANY

Satisfaction Expressed Regarding Present Arrangements.

ONLY 75 WERE PRESENT

Two Amendments Were Brought Up, Both Being Turned Down.

The general meeting of the McGill Union, which was called for yesterday afternoon in the lounge room of the Union, did not come off, through failure to secure the required quorum of 92 members. Instead, a formal discussion—the second of the kind since the session opened—was held, with an attendance of about 75. The meeting, however, fulfilled the purpose for which it was called, and a resolution, moved by Dr. S. Vineberg, Law '16, and seconded by Mr. Bernfield, Law '17, was carried without a dissenting voice, to the effect that:

"This meeting declare itself as being in favor of granting to members of the Fifth Universities Company the same privileges as have been enjoyed by the other four University companies."

G. M. Willisroft, president of the Union, who presided at the meeting, opened by reviewing the necessity for the meeting, which was simply a "bunch of red tape" in order that the privileges of the Union might be granted the 5th Universities Company which is about to be organized. A letter from Captain A. S. Eve, O.C. the 4th Universities Company, was read, stating that authority had been granted for the raising, training and equipping of a 5th Universities Company, C.E.F., and that he should be glad to learn before accepting the responsibility of such a company if the members of it would receive an invitation and a genuine welcome on behalf of the student body who make use of the Union.

"The Fourth Company is at full strength," wrote Captain Eve, "and a fifth company can doubtless be raised in a short time after the fourth embarks. So far as the company is concerned, no better arrangements could possibly be made than those which now exist in the case of the Fourth Company."

Captain Eve also, on behalf of the officers and men, expressed his appreciation of the resolution published in the McGill Daily of October 30.

The foregoing resolution was moved, followed by an amendment moved by G. McL. Pitts and seconded by E. J. Lowe: "That the possession of the McGill Union be given over completely to the Fourth and Fifth University Overseas Companies after the 1st of December, 1915, to be used by them for military purposes. During that period in which it is in use by them, they shall have control of and be responsible for the building."

"That the guarantee for damages sustained by the building during this period be put in a definite written statement by the parties assuming the same."

Considerable discussion took place on this amendment. Mr. Willisroft thought that its passing would defeat the ends for which the meeting was called, as the company, he felt sure, would not accept the use of the building under these circumstances. In any case, it would be illegal, he said, as a constitution had been given the Union, and they must live up to it. The present system was, in his opinion, the only satisfactory one, and one on any other basis would not be satisfactory to the company. With regard to the second paragraph of the amendment, he stated that negotiations were now in progress looking towards an agreement that if the C.O.T.C. failed to make provision for this purpose, the University would be responsible for covering the expense.

Mr. Pitts spoke briefly in support of the amendment, explaining that it had been said the students were unparliamentary, and if this amendment should be adopted, there would be no ground for this at all. The amendment was not put to a vote, as it was decided to be out of order.

An amendment to grant to all university men serving with the overseas units in training in the city, the privileges of the reading, lounge and billiards rooms, was introduced by E. J. Lowe, seconded by G. M. Pitts.

The question was raised as to how university men could be identified, G. W. Bourke taking the view that the scheme was impracticable for this reason. It was pointed out that non-university men who are members of the University Company were already making use of the Union. On being put to a vote, the amendment was lost.

MARITIME CLUB.

Smoker to be Held on Friday Evening,
November 19th.

It has been decided that the Maritime Club will hold a smoker at the Edinburgh Cafe on Friday night, Nov. 19, at 8 o'clock. In order that this meeting be a success, it is urgently requested that all Maritime men hold this date open.

An executive meeting will be held to-night in room B, Strathcona Hall, at 6.30.

Notice is also given that at 12 o'clock to-morrow the photo for the Annual will be taken.

THE ORCHESTRA HOLD PRACTICE

A Concert is to be Held Next Sunday.

GREAT STRIDES ARE MADE

An Urgent Appeal is Being Made For More New Members.

The Students' Orchestra held a well-attended and snappy rehearsal last night at Strathcona Hall. The music for the coming Sunday concert is now well under way, and encouraging predictions for the first appearance this season are to be heard in many places. Mr. Presner, the new leader, is showing himself thoroughly qualified to handle both the music and the orchestra in an acceptable manner. He would be very glad to hear from any instrumentalists who can spare an hour or so on Thursday evenings. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that previous experience, while useful, is not indispensable. "Second" parts in an amateur orchestra are not nearly so difficult as people who have never played in one might naturally suppose. Yet they are interesting, since they contribute an essential part to the general effect.

It is not the object of the Students' Orchestra to collect a small number of advanced players, and add to their already shining ability; rather do the members wish to enlist the services of enthusiastic beginners who desire in time to become efficient orchestra performers. Many opportunities of appearing before a not too critical public will present themselves from time to time during the year. On these occasions the orchestra men have a chance to get acquainted with a crowd from "out in front," to realize that the people are not interested in them from a personal standpoint, but only anxious to hear what they can do; to taste the incredible joy of well-earned applause for successful team-work. Those who have been through the mill know that this is not an exaggerated account of the experience. A man gets by playing in an orchestra. Those who have not owe it to themselves to put the matter to a practical test. Come out and try.

WELCOME TO STUDENTS.

Special Service Next Sunday at Melville Church.

A special students' service will be held next Sunday evening at the Melville Presbyterian Church, Westmount, when a sermon of special interest to students will be preached. Immediately at the close of the service, the Young People's Association will extend their hospitality to any students who desire to spend a social hour. A musical programme and refreshments will be served.

LECTURE ON WATER POWERS OF CANADA

Dean of Science Will Address
Science Undergraduates
Next Wednesday.

Next Wednesday night, in the lecture hall of the Chemistry Building, Dr. F. D. Adams will address the Science Undergraduates' Society on "The Water Powers of Canada." This is the first general meeting of the society, and a big attendance is expected. Dr. Adams is an authority on all the resources of Canada, and he is certain to give an interesting and instructive talk. His lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides, and in addition to these, large maps will be shown giving the exact location of the systems of power and the territory to which they would furnish power. Dr. Adams will also point out the advantages that may be obtained from all this power, a great part of which is as yet undeveloped.

Fair Play!

Yesterday afternoon another attempt was made to hold a general meeting of the McGill Union with the usual discouraging result. No quorum.

It is true that there were a few more in attendance yesterday than the time before, but the same students who attended the first time made up a large proportion of those present yesterday. The same faces may be seen at the general meetings of nearly every organization at McGill. Student affairs are controlled and carried on by about five per cent. of the whole number of students at the University. Someone has to do the work if we are to retain any vestige of our present scheme of self-government, and about nine-tenths of the students are too grossly lazy to even say what they wish to be done, let alone to take a hand in the doing of it. Even when through individual canvassing and repeated urging, about seventy students were induced to turn up at yesterday's meeting, many of them were too languid to raise their hands either for or against the proposals put forward.

Perhaps, it was largely due to this same laziness and lack of practice in the art of doing one's own thinking that the amendment giving the privileges of the Union to University men in overseas units was defeated, but the whole affair leaves a bad impression in the mind of the reader. We have become accustomed during the past few weeks to the use of such phrases as "Giving McGill a black eye," "Setting a patriotic example," "The effect on the public," and similar expressions whenever some line of action was proposed which did not exactly suit these self-appointed guardians of our reputation. It would be easy to apply these arguments or substitutes for argument to the present episode, but The Daily feels that when the situation is placed clearly before the undergraduate body, that body will do the right thing because it is right and fair, and not because of what outside critics may say. Briefly, matters are as follows—four companies, composed partly of University men, have been quartered in the Union Building for some months and no complaints have yet been made by students as to the conduct of these men. So far from objecting to their presence it is proposed to invite another company to take up their quarters there as soon as the present company moves out. Now it is a well-known fact that a great many University students have enlisted for active service in other units than the University Companies. Many of these ex-students, some of them from McGill itself are stationed in Montreal, and would be just as grateful for a chance to enjoy a quiet read, or chat, or a game of billiards with men of their own class and education, as the men who have enlisted in the University companies. Yet, an amendment to the resolution of invitation to the Fifth University Company, which would have extended the privileges of the reading room and billiard room to University men in any overseas corps was voted down yesterday for no apparent reason at all. The only objection voiced by any of those present was a plea that it would not be possible to distinguish a University man when in uniform. The same objection would apply equally well to students in civilian garb, but no serious trouble has arisen over this fact, and it is hard to understand why it should be raised when a student is wearing the King's uniform. If necessary, a card entitling the bearer to the privileges of the Union might be issued to all these men and they might be required to show this on entering the building. We must be careful to understand what we are doing. Are we, in granting the Union as barracks for the University Companies, extending the hospitality of McGill to fellow students on their way to do their share for their Empire and ours, or are we narrow-mindedly advertising a particular corps under the control of our own graduates, at the expense of other units?

It must be remembered that the meeting yesterday was informal and without authority to pass any resolution on behalf of the Union. It is, therefore, to be hoped that the Union House Committee, which has the power to do so, will see fit to ignore the action of a few misguided students, and to extend an invitation to University soldiers in all overseas units in Montreal to use the Union on the same footing as the students of McGill and the Universities Companies.

INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF GREEK MONARCHS; PRESENT KING OF GREECE HAS LOST POPULARITY

Arts '19 Man Gives Concise Record of Greece's Position in Present War, Showing How it Would be Advantageous For Her to Side With Allies.

(By K. P. Tsolainos, Arts '19.)

The first to wear the crown of Greece was the son of King Ludwig of Bavaria, Prince Otto, aged seventeen at the time of his election.

Prince Otto, though scarcely more than a boy, was received in Greece in 1835 with great enthusiasm, as the saviour of the country from civil war. An idealist, an almost fanatical lover of Greece and of the Hellenes, a man who regarded the throne as a holy mission entrusted to him by God, Otto yet failed to grasp the peculiarities of the Greek people and to understand the Hellenic mind.

The German Method.

He came to Greece accompanied by three experienced Bavarian counselors—Gen. Heideck, Count Arman-spers and Prof. Maurer. These three regents acted as a cabinet and "heaved much after the usual manner of Germans who are appointed to rule a conquered country"—a conduct totally uncongenial to Hellenic ideas.

Discontent among the Greeks soon became apparent, and to appease the growing anti-foreign feeling the three Bavarian Ministers promised that a National Assembly to draft a constitution would soon be called, but their promises were never kept.

For ten years this Bavarian trinitate, with the aid of the Bavarian troops who had accompanied Prince Otto, ruled absolutely. The Greek generals, the heroes of the Revolution (1821), who had emancipated Greece from the Turkish yoke, were excluded from participation in the higher offices and Germans were always appointed.

Hopes Wrecked.

The result of this effort to impose Germanic ideas and methods on the Hellenes was that apathy and disorder reigned in all departments of the administration; intrigues and conspiracies were formed and the people's hatred of the Germanic mind and its imperialistic views rose to the point of mania.

THE REVOLUTION.

In 1843, nearly ten years after the election of King Otto, a bloodless revolution compelled him to dismiss the Bavarians from their offices and to summon a National Assembly. This is the official birth of the Greek constitution. But in spite of this action, the King never won back the love of the people, which his Germanic ideas had forfeited. No real spirit of national union existed throughout Greece, and no great effort was made on the part of the populace to better conditions. The Hellenes were for many years the uninterested spectators of the drama played by the King and his clique. But in 1862 the people rose as one man to protest against the infringement of their hereditary rights and ideals. A few volleys with the King's Life Guards, an engagement in the streets of Athens, and the King was convinced it was useless to try to rule a people whose ideals and methods were diametrically opposed to his own.

Prevents Civil War.

On October, 1862, he issued the memorable manifesto to his subjects according to which "he was withdrawing for a time, since he had not the heart to plunge his beloved Greece into a sanguinary civil war."

Because of this abdication and his subsequent conduct in the heart of every Greek his memory is very precious to-day, and a love amounting almost to worship is cherished towards the man who meant well, though he utterly failed to succeed.

George I.—Formerly Prince Christian William Ferdinand Adolph George of Denmark, brother of Queen Alexandra, was chosen King of the Hellenes March 30, 1863, and made his entrance into Athens October 29, 1863.

One of his first acts was to take the oath of the Constitution: "I swear in the name of the Holy and Invisibly Trinity to defend the Greek religion, to protect and preserve the inviolability and independence of the Greek state, and to rule according to the law."

His manner and actions from the very first won the adoration of all the Hellenes and henceforth the people, united as one, entered into a long

M. POINCARÉ AND THE ARMY.

Paris, France.—M. Poincaré has addressed a letter to M. Millerand, minister of war, on the successes of the French arms in Artois and Champagne. Our admirable troops have given fresh proofs, he said, in this strenuous fighting, of their incomparable ardor and of their devotion to their country. They have definitely established their superiority over the enemy. I beg that you will transmit to the commander in chief, to the generals in command of armies and brigades, and to all the officers, subalterns and soldiers, my warmest congratulations. M. Millerand, minister of war, in forwarding the letter from M. Poincaré to General Joffre, also sent his personal congratulations to the armies.

period of reorganization and common advancement. From the very start of his noble career the youthful King possessed an unusual amount of adaptability and diplomatic tact, assimilated his own life and fortunes with those of the nation he came to rule; and the secret of his success lies in the fact that he placed the Hellenic welfare foremost in his thoughts and actions and never permitted private relations to interfere with his policy.

A People's Ruler.

His predecessor was constantly relying on the Bavarian troops he had brought with him; but the young Dane took for his motto, "The love of my people is my power."

He found Greece an almost bankrupt state, a land where murder and brigandage flourished, a land without public roads and public safety and totally bereft of European sympathies. But his unflinching determination to penetrate into the depths of the Hellenic mind, and to become one with the cause of his subjects, gradually conquered every difficulty, and Greece, before the nineteenth century closed, was classed as one of the most advanced states of Europe and her ruler as one of its happiest and best constitutional kings.

With great political skill and moral strength, he guided the nation through the years of its political development "without once resorting to a subtle interpretation of the constitution."

A Crisis.

One of the decisive crises in Hellenic history took place during the reign of King George in 1909. This crisis, inspired by the Military League, was a natural outcome of the Turkish, Austrian and Bulgarian proceedings of 1908, by which Bulgaria was proclaimed a kingdom acquiring Eastern Rumelia, Austria appropriated Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Turkish Government changed its name—not its form—from an absolute monarchy to a constitutional state.

The Military League in Athens overthrew the Government on Aug. 27, 1909. Among their demands were the reorganization of the army and fleet and the removal of the Crown Prince Constantine—now King—from the position of commander-in-chief, which he had occupied for a number of years.

For ten months the country was in a state of chaos and uncertainty. King George would not use his influence nor even his right to interfere, but permitted events to take their natural course. All the time he was searching for the man to whom he could entrust the government of his country in such a critical time.

If Greece does not owe King George a lasting debt of gratitude for anything else, she certainly does for the man he then found and in whose hands he unhesitatingly placed the destiny of Hellas.

This man was Eleftherios Venizelos. Although King George knew that Venizelos's policy in Crete had been anti-royalist, still, he prized his country's welfare above his own feelings, and asked Venizelos to come from Crete to Athens and accept the Premiership. Since October, 1910, Greece has been reborn through the perfect co-operation of King George and Venizelos. Never did a minister enjoy a better confidence from his king than Venizelos, and never was a king prouder of his premier than King George I.

The Constitution was revised, the financial system improved, education was made compulsory, agriculture and commerce were promoted, and the reorganization of the Greek army and navy was entrusted to French and English officers.

A Happy Triumph.

To the co-operation of King George and Venizelos we owe the formation of the Balkan League and the important and successful part played by Greece in the war. The first Balkan war was coming to its end in March, 1913, when King George was assassinated in Salonika, the city he had entered in triumph.

He died a contented man. His great prospects and plans had been realized. He had come as a youth of seventeen to rule a country in a state of anarchy, a country of only 19,000

MANY ANIMALS TREATED AT UNIVERSITY CLINICS

Besides treating 135,000 persons in the University Hospital in San Francisco, the Infirmary, and the Los Angeles Medical Department dispensary, the University has relieved the sufferings of many domestic animals.

The veterinary clinic conducted at the Davis Farm by Dr. F. M. Hayes, assistant professor of veterinary science, treated 2020 domestic animals, including horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, dogs and cats, the hogs holding first place in the number treated.

KIRGHIZ TRIBESMEN AS SOLDIERS.

Petrograd, Russia.—The military authorities are strongly in favor of using the hardy Kirghiz tribesmen in the war. The Kirghiz population inhabiting South Eastern Russia numbers approximately 12,000,000. It is, therefore, probable that large bodies of these men, if not a whole army, will appear in the field after the necessary training.

square miles, with a population of one million. He left to his successor a country of 15,000 square miles with a population of over five million; a country in which administration, education, public security, commerce, and general efficiency were the foremost in the Balkan Peninsula.

The Greek people have mourned their national loss; they loved him as a king; they mourned him as a father; and the beautiful tomb where he sleeps is a place of daily pilgrimage and worship. Not until to-day did the Greek people realize the extent of their loss!

The King is dead. Long live the King. Constantine was not only the rightful successor to the throne, but, owing to his great successes in the Balkan war, the ideal of the people. At the time of his proclamation he had reached a height of popularity almost as great as the disfavor with which, owing largely to his German connections, he had been regarded when Crown Prince.

The people especially cherished the fact that King Constantine was co-operating with their pronounced and chosen leader, Venizelos. Greece was making great strides in every department of administration and national life when the Great War commenced. At the outbreak of the war, Greece announced a benevolent neutrality to the Allied cause, handing over later on the islands of Tenedos and Lemnos to the British, and opening her markets and ports to the Allies. But Greece could not remain a silent spectator of a drama in which her own very existence was involved. In February last Venizelos, voicing the Pan-Hellenic vote, decided to act.

A Changed Monarch.

It was then the Greeks were to get their first insight into the real character of their present monarch. The Greeks believe now that the most golden opportunity for Greece to re-unite the yet unliberated Grecian lands and to realize her long-cherished ideals was lost last February, never again to appear so easy and alluring. In spite of all this, and although the King's action was indirectly an unconstitutional one, the Greeks kept silent and did not lose their absolute trust in the patriotism of their King.

The events since last February have convinced us that Venizelos was right and the King was wrong. We gave the King our answer by re-electing Venizelos. With our chosen and honest leader at the helm, once more, things took their natural course, and Greece again as one man was preparing to enter the war, this time not only to realize her own aims, but to save her ally, Serbia, and thus confirm herself the title of an honorable nation.

Her Own Battle.

Furthermore, by helping Serbia, Greece would be fighting for her own existence, for it is evident to all the Hellenes throughout the world—except to the King and to his clique—that a Germano-Turco-Bulgarian victory means the eternal death of Greece.

On the eve of Greece's entrance into the fray, the representative body had voted for the participation of Greece. In case Bulgaria should attack Serbia, King Constantine, by an act unequalled in the annals of a country which claims to be ruled constitutionally—an act of violence, an act, one can only think, incited by his personal relations to the Kaiser—dismissed the man who alone could claim to be the Greek leader. For not only is he a worthy leader, but he is an honorable leader and honorably takes care of his sacred charge.

"You men of the Opposition have sold your souls to the Germans," Venizelos said in the Parliament before he resigned. "Our country's honor is at stake. We must be true to our sacred obligations."

The cry of our Serbian brothers tears our hearts to pieces. "Come to our help," we hear from the mountains of gallant Serbia.

We want to come to you, brothers; we feel we must leave you alone, for your fight is our fight. We want to be true to ourselves and to our sacred obligations, but a hand is holding us back, the hand which should lead us to you and to the field of honor.

SELF-HELP STUDENTS IN NEW MEXICO.

Albuquerque, N. M.—The state university of New Mexico claims the distinction of having the largest proportion of self-supporting students of any university in the United States. The figures published by the registrar of the institution show that the total enrollment is 192. Of this number 116 are men and 76 women. It is pointed out that few of the women contribute to their own support. Of the men, however, 53, or more than 45 per cent., are paying all or a considerable part of their own university expenses.

The enrollment includes students from all but four of the state's 26 counties, and these four are expected to be represented next year. Only 37 of the students were born in the state. The others were natives of 34 of the states of the Union and of four foreign countries.

Granville Barker, in a lecture to the students of Ohio State, says: "The person who cannot laugh at Charlie Chaplin will never be vitally interested in Shakespearean portrayals."

Dear Mr. Editor:

Being a freshman, I am compelled by the university to spend two hours each week in some form of physical exercise. I have chosen swimming as my form of activity, because Association football, to which I am accustomed, could not be obtained.

I submitted to the required physical examination and obtained a grade A card; yet when I enter the pool the majority of men, some of them of my class, manifest signs of uneasiness which cannot be misinterpreted. Now, this is certainly not the kind of thing one student should show another, especially in a place like a Y.M.C.A. My attendance at these exercises is as compulsory as any of my laboratory periods; therefore, I should expect to receive the same courtesy as if I were in the lecture room. I have no intentions of applying for a transfer yet. I am determined that if the attitude of these men be unchanged, then—

Trusting you will make room for this in the columns of our daily paper, Very truly,

H. L. ELLIS.

NAME NEW PRESIDENT.

Palo Alto, Cal.—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur will become president of Leland Stanford Junior University on January 1, 1916, succeeding Dr. John Caspar Branner.

When Dr. Branner accepted the appointment as president of the university in 1913, on the retirement of Dr. David Starr Jordan, it was stipulated that he should be allowed to relinquish the post at the end of two years. He will now be retired under the provisions of the Carnegie pension fund, and will continue his research work in geology at Stanford University.

UNIQUE TEST OF ENDURANCE

4th Company March Ten Miles
Then Have Relay Race.

HAVE NIGHT OPERATIONS

Universities Men Protect Imaginary Convoy From Enemy on Mount Royal.

The Fourth Universities Company, yesterday morning, set a unique endurance record. After leaving the Sherbrooke street barracks at 9.15, the unit marched around the two mountains, a distance of some ten miles, and returned to the camp at 11.30. Immediately upon arrival, without any rest, an inter-platoon relay race was started around the race track on the campus. The back platoon furnished twenty competitors, which consists of nineteen men and a platoon commander. The four officers started off, and when they finished, each as he came up to the starting line, handed on his cane to the next man, and so on until all the twenty men on each platoon team had run. The officers' round of the relay was very close and was won by Lieut. Higgins, of No. 4 platoon; 2, Lieut. Chenney, of No. 2 platoon; 3, Lieut. Robinson, of No. 1 platoon; and 4, Lieut. Haywood, of No. 3 platoon. The relay teams afforded a very exciting half hour, as, according to their running merits, first one platoon, and then another would be ahead. No. 4 platoon came in first, while No. 1 came second; No. 2 third, and No. 3 fourth. After dinner the men were given a lecture by Captain Ewe on "Night Operations," and, following this, the company marched out on to the campus, where the different sections gave mutual instruction in arms drill.

In the evening, as is usual on Thursdays, the company took part in night operations on Mount Royal. The theory of the manoeuvres was that an enemy force had taken possession of the mountain and contemplated intercepting and capturing a convoy coming from Cote des Neiges. The other force endeavored to prevent this, and altogether the whole evening's manoeuvres were very successfully carried out, and both the men and officers learned valuable lessons.

Queen's sent, Lieut.-Col. H. R. Duff to replace him at Cairo.

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM OTTAWA COLLEGE

The University Dramatic Club
Will Stage College Drama
Shortly.

The University Dramatic Club, an organization formed last year by the senior students of the English course, was reorganized for the year 1915-16 at a meeting held on Thursday evening. This society was very successful in its initial efforts last season and great enthusiasm was evinced by the members at the outlook for this season.

Last year the cast was composed of male parts only, but it was found difficult to get suitable plays for male characters only. The vehicle used by the company last year was a one-act college comedy by Bessie W. Springer entitled "A Girl to Order." It was voted at the meeting to introduce female parts into the organization, and it was also decided to stage another college drama, the name of which is withheld for the present. The company has already made several bookings in the smaller towns, and both look for a busy season.

The French Debating Society has decided on its programme for this year. Besides the regular class of elocution, mock parliaments, etc., twelve debates will be held. The usual prize debate and French play will take place at the close of the season.

The long-expected gymnasium paraphernalia has arrived. It includes a climbing ladder, horizontal bars, a vaulting horse, a punching bag, swinging ropes and several other devices which will afford exciting exercise to the senior boys.

The buildings on Daly avenue and Wilbrod street, which have been used ever since the disastrous college fire as sleeping quarters for the students are no longer occupied. All the students are in the main building and are occupying the space which the priests were formerly in possession of. The reverend fathers have been housed in the new wing since its completion.

With the first signs of winter here again plans are being completed to start work on the college rinks. Two large rinks, with sufficient lights for evening practice, will be made again, one for the senior boys and the other for the juniors.

HARVARD MEN ENROLL.

Forty-one men have enrolled in a preparedness class at the battery headquarters in Boston. They were Harvard men who were at Plattsburg last summer and former battery A officers and men. The aim of the school is to fit the men to take command of citizen forces. It is to be conducted under the supervision of Capt. Robert Davis, U.S.A.

WHEN A SHELL TRAVELS PAST

Captain Ellis, of Queen's Engineers, Writes Home.

LIEUT. BAKER'S HEROISM

Lost Sight of One Eye in Helping to Rebuild Broken Parapet.

Writing from Belgium under date of October 12, Captain Douglas S. Ellis, of the 6th (Queen's) Field Divisional Engineers, 2nd Expeditionary Force, says:

"We have had a very busy time for the last couple of weeks, so I have not had much time for letter-writing. However, to-night I am going to cut out censoring letters for others, and will write one myself. This censoring is an awful job—worse than reading examination papers. And there is no end to it, for the first thing the boys do when they come out of the trenches is to write half a dozen letters, which the officers have to read.

"Things are going along pretty well, although we have lost one of our officers, Lieut. Edwin Baker, who was struck by a bullet in the eye last Saturday night. He is now in England. We were all terribly upset about it, for we were very fond of him.

"Our first word was that he had lost both eyes, but at the second dressing station the doctor said he thought the right eye was unhurt. This word lifted a big load from us, for the thought of a chap of his age facing the darkness of total blindness broke us all up.

Lieut. Baker's Heroic Efforts.

"The way it happened was this. Last Friday night the enemy blew a mine under part of our lines and rather disorganized the infantry holding them. This was in part of the line Baker was supervising. Though the infantry are really responsible for the safety of their lines, they were too tied up to do much. So Baker stepped in and put parties at work, and by heroic efforts of his own and the boys, partly rebuilt this parapet and saved the lines.

"Saturday night he went up again, and as near as I can learn, things were not satisfactory, and he went forward again to this bad spot. While there, a sniper's bullet clipped across his eyes. He never lost consciousness, and was dressed immediately in one of the dugouts. Word was sent in to us and men went out. They found him conscious, although a little dazed from morphine. He did not know that his eye had been hit, and spoke of coming back soon. It is terrible, but it is the fortune of the game. A braver lad or better soldier never stepped, as he proved to be when he grabbed hold of things after the mine explosion. For that he certainly deserves recognition, and we are hoping that he will get it, for he passed major, captain, and every one else then.

Rest of Front Quiet.

"The rest of our front has been very quiet with this exception. Of course every day they have an artillery bombardment. Our fellows bomb them, and they come back. The other day I was up in the front, when the Germans were shelling our trenches. It is certainly weird. You first hear a racket, a dull distant report of a gun, then overhead you hear a sound like a wagon running down a stony street, with a rough wheel; then you hear a roar which makes you think the earth has been blown apart, and an immense cloud of dust and black smoke goes up. And then some one says, 'Another coal box.' All the different kinds of shells have their nicknames—'whizz-bangs,' 'coal boxes,' 'black Marlas,' 'Jack Johnsons,' etc.

"Personally, I don't care much for shell fire, but it does not do an awful lot of damage, for every one gets under cover and lets them go at it. "You will be glad to know that Major MacPhail's (Sci. '93, McGill) company is near us. The other night he came in to see us, and we had a long talk. I had a great time with 'Teddy' Birkett. He is filled with jokes, and seems to see the funny side of everything. He says he wishes the war would last nine years. However, he is the first one I have heard say that, although 'Sandy' says that the first seven years of it will be the worst."

Company L of the National Guard has been mainly recruited from the Princeton undergraduate body.

Athletic relations between N. Y. U. and Trinity may be severed, as a result of dissatisfaction over the question of Charlie Brickley's professionalism.

Penn State is trying to abolish compulsory chapel. Princeton set this example last year. The reason is because of so many religions being represented in the student body.

Since receiving a gift of $3,000,000, Oberlin is said to be the richest college in the world. This money was donated by an alumnus who has become immensely rich through the discovery of a process of extracting aluminum from clay.

The faculty of Oregon University is instituting a movement to abolish all intercollegiate athletics.

By defeating Michigan 3 to 2, Harvard won the intercollegiate championship in chess.

The custom of having the freshmen wear distinctive hats is an innovation this year at Missouri.

"Billy" Sunday spoke to the students of the University on Friday morning in the gymnasium on the subject, "Forces That Win." This was the biggest university meeting that has occurred this year.

STUDENT BAND GOING STRONG

C.O.T.C. Will Now be Treated to Some Fine Music.

TWENTY-FOUR MUSICIANS

Band Practices Will Hereafter
Be Held Every Tuesday At Old High School.

The Students' Band of the C.O.T.C. faces a more successful season, if possible, than the last one. The turnout is excellent, no less than twenty-four men being numbered in the ranks, and to judge by the class of music played, the band possesses some talented musicians. The practices are held every Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock in the band room of the old High School. A list of the bandmen follows: C. R. Gibbs, R. P. Clough, J. N. Betourney, K. C. Roseborough, T. Blumore, D. Ross-Ross, G. L. Trapp, A. T. Bowen, H. Mouquin, W. E. Henderson, J. C. Morphy, L. Amador, R. G. Clarke, J. R. Desy, C. A. Monat, D. J. Beach, J. O. Despatie, W. C. Dillard, H. E. Taber, K. Gordon, J. O. Murtha, A. B. Copping, W. H. Kelly and J. Holland.

GERMAN SUBMARINES.

Christiana, Norway — A discussion

has arisen in the press in Christiania as to the reasons for the sudden disappearance of German submarines off the Norwegian coast. It is stated that during the past few weeks not a single boat has been seen, or been reported by ships, and whereas formerly the sinking of neutral ships was almost an everyday occurrence, now comparatively long periods elapse between the sinking or torpedoing of any vessels. Various theories are put forward in the press to account for this state of affairs. It is thought that owing to the extreme vigilance of the British destroyers, the German submarines do not dare to make such long voyages as hitherto. Another reason given is that the Germans are expecting further developments in the North sea, and that the submarines will be required to take part in these operations. It is also considered likely that since the Arabic affair threatened to assume such perilous dimensions, Germany is anxious to create a good impression in America by discontinuing her warfare on neutral shipping for the time being. Whatever the reasons for this sudden cessation in the operations of the U. boats, it has attracted considerable attention, and given rise to much theorizing.

COLUMBIA GRADUATE MISSING.

There has been much distress on the Columbia campus due to the report that Capt. Colquhoun, '14, who has been serving in the British army, has been reported missing.

CAMPUS THEATRE FOR MINNESOTA

Chemistry Building to be Remodeled Into Modern Little Theatre.

The University of Minnesota will soon have a theatre of its own. A large lecture hall in the Men's Union, generally known as the Chemistry Building, will be remodelled into a complete, modern little theatre, seating 400 people. The class in architecture at the university, under the direction of Frederick M. Mann, is now working out the design and construction of the theatre, taking up successively the proscenium arch, the seating arrangement, the lighting effects, etc. Mr. Mann, who has taught in the Universities of Washington, Pennsylvania and Illinois, has thus placed before his students not merely a theoretical problem in design, but an actual one.

Charles E. Skinner, of the rhetoric department, who conducts the class in dramatic technique, has general charge of the project, and with Mr. Mann is securing for the playhouse the latest ideas in lighting and scenic effects. The little theatre will have its own orchestra pit, seating eight or ten pieces, and its own greenroom and dressing rooms.

GERMAN GUNS IN FRANCE.

Paris, France—Over 100,000 persons visited the Invalides on the first day on which the German guns captured by the French armies in the recent fighting in Champagne were on view. There are 39 cannon of 77, one of 150, one of 88 and one of 57 mm., 16 howitzers of 105 and four of 150 mm.; five 150 mm. mortars, also mitrailleuses, machines for throwing bombs and a complete searchlight. Previous to the entry of the public into the court of honor where the guns had been placed, Generals Gallieni, Clergerie, Bethen and Laude, under the guidance of Colonel Montell examined the trophies, all of which have been too badly damaged to be of any use to the French on the battlefield. The exhibition is regarded by Parisians as one of the chief events that has occurred in their city since the war began.

At the annual meeting of the Governors of the Glasgow Royal Technical College it was reported that 1,736 members of the governing body of committees, staff, and past and present students had joined the colors. Of that number, 468 were serving as officers, 331 non-commissioned officers, and 937 men. Mr. Biggart reported that 1,200 applications for training as munitions workers from men and women had been considered suitable. He hoped the cost of the scheme would ultimately be repaid by the Munitions Board. Mr. Bellby, who presided, was unanimously re-elected chairman.

Dr. George O. Taylor, Med. '07, who left Canada with No. 2 Canadian General Hospital, and served with it at Le Treport, France, is now with the British forces in Serbia. He is a son of W. F. Taylor, general storekeeper of the Government Railways at Moncton, N.B., and a younger brother has just enlisted in the Siege Battery at St. John.

Lieut. Don. C. Skinner, Arts '15, who went overseas with the 24th Battalion, is at present suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia, according to news which has reached the University. Lieut. Skinner was a section commander in the C.O.T.C. last year, and comes from St. John, N.B.

UNIFORM CODE FOR COLLEGES.

New York — A serious effort to get a uniform code of rules to govern the question of amateurism in college athletics is to be made by the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes. A call was sent out to-day to the various colleges throughout the East for an expression as to the fitness of the present rules governing the status of college athletes. The disbarment of five Yale athletes and the differences caused by the case of George Brickley at Trinity, has brought matters to a focus in eastern circles.

PRINCESS PATS. HEARD FROM

Sgt. J. A. Lalanne Writes From the Front.

McGill Officers With Pats

News of McGill Men from Serbia, Egypt, France and Bermuda.

Sergt. J. A. Lalanne, Arts '17, with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in France, writes under date of October 21:

"Received your letter a few days ago. We are at present out of the trenches for a few days' rest, but do not know how long it will last. We received in to-day's mail the Standard of October 2, which contained several pictures of the Battalion sports. Harkness also got the first issue of this year's Daily, which contained several articles that were of interest to us, and there was therefore some waiting list for the paper.

"I noticed that most of the officers in the Battalion were new to us. I was speaking to Dobbie (R. M. Dobbson) the other day, and he had received a letter from you the day before.

"We have just heard here that Lieut. Rusty Laine has been wounded. He was with the 24th Battalion. I suppose you noticed the extract from Sutherland's letter in the first issue of The Daily. He was asking if he could get two months' leave to return to Canada and kill the enemy.

"Major Gault returned to the regiment a short time ago with four officers of the 2nd University Company. There are now eight McGill officers with us. I cannot write very much for a few days, but will try to send you something for Morgan in a week or two."

Lieut. Morgan M. Johnston, Arts '15, who holds a commission with the Artillery at Kingston, has been compelled to return to Montreal owing to injuries to his leg. It is said that he will be forced to undergo an operation for scraping the bone.

Lieut. Melbourne O'Halloran, Arts '15, of the 32nd Battery, C.F.A., now at Kingston, is leaving shortly on overseas service with a reinforcements draft from the battery. He is a son of G. F. O'Halloran, Law '85, and a grandson of Sir Melbourne Tait, Law '62.

The name of Lieut. Gordon G. Bell, of the 38th Battalion, C.E.F., a former McGill man, is included in a copy of a despatch from His Excellency Lieut.-General G. M. Bullock, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Bermuda, received at Ottawa from the Colonial Office. The despatch has reference to the wreck of the steamship Pollock-shields at Bermuda on Sept. 7 last. In this despatch, writing of the work of rescuing the crew of the wrecked vessel, Lieut.-Gen. Bullock states: "The signaller of the 38th Ottawa Canadian Battalion, now quartered here under Lieut. Armstrong, rendered most valuable assistance in keeping up communications by flag and lamp with the ship under very difficult circumstances, and the following officers of the Battalion worked hard to help the crew ashore: Major MacNeil, Lieuts. Bell, MacFarlane and Gardiner."

Dr. George O. Taylor, Med. '07, who left Canada with No. 2 Canadian General Hospital, and served with it at Le Treport, France, is now with the British forces in Serbia. He is a son of W. F. Taylor, general storekeeper of the Government Railways at Moncton, N.B., and a younger brother has just enlisted in the Siege Battery at St. John.

PROSPECT AT OXFORD BAD

Famous Old University Has Hard Year Ahead.

FRESHMEN MUCH FEWER

Casualties in the Ranks of Graduates and Undergrads. Amount to Six Hundred.

The London Times.—The leaves are falling again in Oxford, and as they flutter down in the quiet quadrangle, in the college garden, or on the deserted towpath, they suggest Horner's famous lines:

"As leaves," so singeth he of old.
"Ye, such are men, a transient race.
They die and others have their place.
And all the tale of life is told."

And, alas! so many have fallen before their duty, clipped in the green, and with bud and blossom, too. Oxford has worn through the long, long vacation, fair as ever, but sitting solitary, vedova sola. Her sorrows and her desolation are not so palpable to herself or to others in July and August and September. But when October comes she cannot deceive herself any longer; she is reminded of all she has lost, of what a shadow of her former self she is. She will have to try to begin again, to go through the forms, but with how meagre and shorn a company! Yet she will try, and old and young who still remain will "carry on," maintaining her tradition, while it is their duty.

How long that may be begins to be a question. There will be this term a handful of undergraduates, there will be a few freshmen coming up to make a beginning, to take the O. T. C. training, and then to follow their brothers when they are ready, and of full age for commissions. There will be a few seniors, some prevented by health from serving, a few who have returned invalided, some reading for medicine or holy orders. There will be some Indian students and some Americans, full, these latter, of cheering friendliness. Altogether the numbers expected are about 300 freshmen, instead of the 1,000 or thereabouts of ordinary years, and an undergraduate total of, say, 600 instead of 3,000.

Of the senior residents more have gone during the Long Vacation, with commissions as officers or chaplains, or to take up special work at the public offices in London, or to make munitions in Birmingham or elsewhere. Some are going even now, and altogether the amount of "war work" being done by Oxford men is always increasing. College servants, too, are very properly continuing to go into the ranks or public service. The state of things, then, is like that of last year, "only more so." Oxford is being slowly starved in men and money.

Financial Deficit.

The concluding words of the official report on the university for last year are: "The deficit of 1915 affords a serious problem." Some considerable reductions were made last year. More must be made this year. Several professorships are, or will be, vacant. Need they be filled up? The council has a ready and splendid one or two. Departments with no students can and ought to be closed. Scholarships and prizes for which there is no adequate competition need not be awarded. The Faculties Fund for providing extra and higher teaching can restrict its grants and hand over a larger balance to the university.

But the state of many of the colleges threatens to become even worse than that of the university. Those which have substantial agricultural rents are in the best position, since these, so far, are maintained, though house rents are already falling off. Colleges like All Souls, Magdalen, New College, Merton and Brasenose gave large help last year to the University Funds. These colleges, however, which depend on tuition fees and undergraduate payments for rooms and board are obviously in a poorer way than ever. The general position seems to be that they can hold on for another year, but after that some may have to close altogether.

Oxford, too, is in deepest mourning. Every college has lost so many, and so many of its best graduates and undergraduates—the brightest, the most able in mind and body. The exact numbers cannot be ascertained till the colleges have met again, but in round numbers some 540 members of the university have been killed, and 60 are missing up to date.

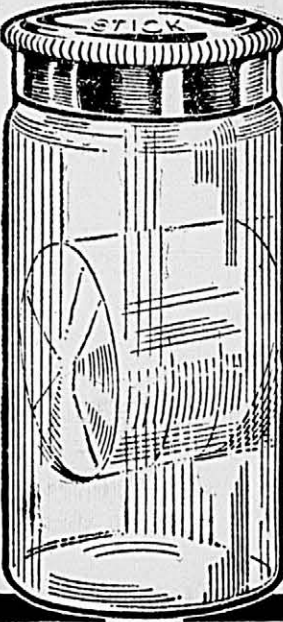

But if poor, bereaved and sad, she is proud in her sorrow. One of the chief labor leaders in Australia, a State Premier, said publicly the other day that Oxford and Cambridge had done more than their share and sent too many young men, the flower of intellectual England, to fight and die. Oxford does not feel she can send too many. She is inclined to say in the words of the prophet-poet of the Roman Empire:

UNIFORM CODE FOR COLLEGES.

New York — A serious effort to get a uniform code of rules to govern the question of amateurism in college athletics is to be made by the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes. A call was sent out to-day to the various colleges throughout the East for an expression as to the fitness of the present rules governing the status of college athletes. The disbarment of five Yale athletes and the differences caused by the case of George Brickley at Trinity, has brought matters to a focus in eastern circles.

MORE MEDICAL UNITS TO GO TO THE FRONT

The Militia Department Makes Important Announcement Relative to Medical Corps.

Announcement of two more Canadian medical units, which will go to the front as part of the medical corps with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, has been made at the Militia Department. Coupled with the fact that Laval University, of Montreal, intends to convert the stationary hospital which it has been mobilizing into a general or base hospital, the announcement means that a considerable addition will be made to the strength of the medical services with the Canadian fighting men.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan has had its offer of a medical unit accepted, and is now mobilizing a stationary hospital of 400 beds, which will go to England, and is furnishing its own equipment. Dalhousie University is also organizing a stationary hospital which will go overseas shortly.

The announced intention of Laval hospital into a general hospital means that a staff and the necessary equipment for an institution of 1,000 beds will have to be secured.

With the addition of these units Canada will have seven complete medical units in England and France, including four general hospitals, so that this branch of the service will be a strong one.

It was also stated at the department that the Toronto hospital has gone to Salonika, where a number of Montreal nurses are also supposed to be now stationed.

MISS A. YOUNGER R.V.C. CHAMPION

Defeated Miss Wanda Wyatt in Tennis Finals After Hot Contest.

The last few days has seen steady progress in the tennis tournaments, one of which has been concluded, with the result that Miss Annie Younger has come out champion for this year. The weather was very favorable for the final match.

Miss Wyatt, the runner-up, played her usual steady game, and stuck close to her opponent during the first set, but in the second she was not able to withstand the cannon-ball serve of Miss Younger, who seemed to carry it off with comparative ease.

Marked improvement was shown in Miss Wyatt's prospects during the third set, which she won 6 to 2, but once more Miss Younger proved her superiority by winning the fourth set. The scores for the semi-finals and finals follow:

Semi-Finals.
A. Younger won from M. Spier, 6-1, 6-2.
W. Wyatt won from W. Wright, 6-0, 6-0.

Finals.
A. Younger won from W. Wyatt, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

Columbia University will be the largest university of the world the present year if she reaches her expected registration of 18,000 by next spring. The growth of this institution in members has been comparatively recent. In 1909 she had 8,400 students; in 1911, 10,350; in 1913, 13,600. There are many extensions and courses and a big summer school, but Columbia resident students outnumber those of any other university in the States.

Is Scheduled to be Taken on Saturday
Afternoon.

The picture of the Track Club is to be taken at the Rembrandt Studio, 591 St. Catherine street west, on Saturday, Nov. 13, at 1:15 p.m. sharp. The following men are requested to turn up in uniform: Klein, Smelzer, Hillier, Antliff, Frosst, Parsons, Cushing, Sulton, Block, Crombie, Baldwin, Pope, Legault, Gerrie and Macklin.

President Yuan Shih-kai has recently signified his interest in the programme of Pekin University by giving $2,000 to the institution.

Football gains its due representation of honorable names this season, three sons of former Presidents of the United States now being listed among the players at their universities—Charles Taft at Yale, Quentin Roosevelt, who is trying for the Harvard freshman team, and Richard Cleveland, a member of the Princeton freshman team.

DECREASE IN REVENUE.

Students of Columbia University earned $103,016 last year, about $40,000 less than was earned during the prior year, according to the report of Paul C. Holter, chairman of the appointments office of Columbia University.

Various ways in which the students earned money are by the selling of their blood for transfusion, teaching dancing, ushering at sporting events and other ways which are more common. It is said that some earned as high as $800 during the past summer acting as companions.

SCIENCE MEET MEDS TO-DAY

Final of Inter-Faculty Series to be Decided.

OFFICIALS APPOINTED

"Billy" Morrison and Hughes to Handle Whistles in Contest at Stadium.

The 1915 football season at McGill University will be brought to a close this afternoon when Science meets Medicine in the final of the inter-faculty series. Medicine qualified to play the Science students by trimming Arts on Wednesday after a hard-fought battle, and it is the opinion of a number who witnessed the battle that the Meds. will force their opponents to show their best form before they beat them to-day.

It is practically on to-day's contest that the wearers of the big block M will be decided. On Wednesday, Lemay and Capt. D. M. Gillmor watched the players and considered their merits. Only those players who show senior class will be given big block M's, so that the members of both teams will have to play real football if they desire to gain the coveted letter. Seventeen small M's are also to be awarded, and if the gridiron artists show anything near intermediate football class, they should at least secure this letter.

To-day's contest starts at 3:30 sharp at the Stadium. The players have all been requested to turn up at the grounds early, so as to start the game on time, and also finish before it gets dark. In to-day's contest it will be worth while watching whether the star Science back field or the heavy Medicine line gains the most ground. In Williscroft, the Science students have one of the best kickers at McGill this year. In the inter-class game a short time ago, George showed himself to be a star, running, catching and punting like a veteran. The Science students must also remember that Madden is also a star, his performance against Arts on Wednesday stamping him as the equal of the best at the local university.

The Science team is composed of most of the players who figured on either last year's intermediate or senior Rugby teams. Herbie Woolatt, half-back of the seniors, will be seen at quarter this afternoon, while Art Brown, of the senior line, will play at middle wing. Trapp, who played in the first senior game last fall and then left college, will play on the scrimmage to-day, while Rounthwaite, who played in the last few games, is picked to play inside wing. Of last year's intermediate team Roseborough will play at flying wing for the Science team, while Ferguson will play left middle.

The Science team will wear numerals to-day in order that they may be distinguished from their opponents, who will carry letters. The officials for the game have already been appointed, "Billy" Morrison being named to referee, while "Bill" Hughes will assist him. These two officials are both capable men, the former having refereed a number of intercollegiate contests last fall, and is known throughout eastern Canada for his fairness and ability in all sporting matters. The teams and officials follow:

THE RAILWAY CLUB TO SEE C.N.R. TUNNEL

The Railway Students Plan a
Good Trip For To-Morrow
Afternoon.

A most interesting trip has been planned through the C.N.R. tunnel on the coming Saturday afternoon. To those who want to see the actual work going on, a special opportunity will be had to-morrow. The work of lining the tunnel is going on at the further end, and it is here that the men will be at work while the inspection is going on.

The executive want it clearly understood, especially by the lower classmen, that membership is not limited to railway students. Cards may be had from any of the executive or from Harry on payment of a fee of fifty cents. This entitles the holder to full membership to the club. It is recommended that heavy boots be worn on Saturday. Each member will be asked to show his card.

SIXTEEN U. OF T. MEN IN SATURDAY'S GAME

The Varsity says: "University of Toronto, from force of circumstances, has been divorced this year from the old-time football enthusiasm. However, an excellent substitute, and one worthy of support, should be found in military football game of to-morrow, when no less than sixteen former U. of T. players, as well as old Quebec's and McGill stars, will doff the khaki long enough to take part in the game which is being staged by the rival camps at Kingston and Toronto.

FOUR ATHLETES GIVEN BIG "M"

Crombie, Hillier, Antliff and Cushing Granted Letters.

FIVE MEN RE-INSTATED

Athletic Association Found That Mistakes Had Been Made in Some Cases.

A meeting of the McGill Athletic Association was held at the Union yesterday afternoon, when considerable important business was carried out. At this meeting no less than four men were granted big block "M's" for their work during the track and field sports held at the Stadium on October 22nd. Two other students were also given second grade block M's for their exhibitions at these sports.

Hugh Crombie, George Hillier, Will S. Antliff and Eric A. Cushing were given big block M's by the Athletic Association. Crombie gained his through his brilliant performances in the short-distance events at the university sports. His time for these events was compared with those made at other universities, and as the performances of Crombie were considered better than any other college athlete, he was granted a big block M.

For winning the 100-yard dash in the fast time of 10 1-5 seconds at the university sports, George Hillier was awarded an M. Hillier was also given a crest for the M, which he won in his freshman year, but which could not be given him at that time. Hillier, after falling down badly at the sports last year, showed a complete return to his best form this fall, and had little trouble in winning the dash. It was this performance that moved the Athletic Association to grant him an M.

Will S. Antliff is the only Arts student to be awarded a big block M. Antliff showed up well in a number of track and field events at the annual sports, and as a result was given an M. Antliff worked hard all fall, and has proved himself to be one of the best all-round athletes now at McGill.

The fourth student to gain a big block M is Eric Cushing. This is the third time Cushing has been granted the big letter, which goes to show that he is still as good as ever. Although Eric did not take part in as many events as last year, he, nevertheless, did very well in those in which he competed.

Two students were granted second grade block M's, these being Sutton, from Macdonald College, and Pope. The former showed unexpected form at the sports, while the latter did good enough work for the Athletic Association to give him a letter.

Of the other business done at yesterday's meeting, P. S. Paddon, of Arts '18, and S. H. O'Brien, of Medicine '18, who played on the McGill polo teams, were suspended because of the fact that they were not examined before taking part in any athletics. The Athletic Association, however, wishes to state that if either of these men can show that a mistake has been made in their case, they should bring it to the notice of the association, and they will be re-instated.

Five men were also reinstated during the meeting, these being: Butterfield, Arts '18; McLarty, Sci. '19; Wolker, Sci. '19; D. McGregor, Med. '20, and Beverley, Sci. '17. The first four were placed in good standing again through the fact that it was brought to the notice of the Athletic Association that the information previously given out in their cases was found to be incorrect. The latter gave a good excuse, and this was accepted. As a result these men can now again take part in any form of athletics.

Letters applying for re-instatement were read from: A. K. Viner, Arts '17; M. H. Myerson, Arts '16; A. Clarke, Sci. '17, and Wald, Med. '20. These letters were not discussed in detail, but were laid on the table for the next meeting, when the association will hand out a decision.

It was also announced by the Athletic Association yesterday that any men who have passed the physical examination are qualified to play in the inter-faculty Rugby game. The impression seems to have been that only players who figured in one-half of the inter-class Rugby games could play in the faculty games, but this is not the case.

HOCKEY PICTURE.

Science '17 Hockey Players Requested to Turn Up This Afternoon.

Members of Science '17 Hockey Team are asked to be at Rembrandt's Studio to have their picture taken at 1:15 p.m. to-day. The team won the class hockey championship last year. The following are to turn out:

Poe (Capt.)
Shanley (Mgr.)
E. P. Wilson.
F. S. Parsons.
Pope.
Jacques.
McCullough.

WILL PRACTICE TO-DAY.

Boxers and Wrestlers Will Work out at Central Y.M.C.A. and Union.

The Boxing and Wrestling Club will hold a practice to-day, the former working out at the Central Y.M.C.A., while the latter will train at the Union. There is room for a number of men in both these departments, so that any student who wishes to become acquainted with the art of self defence should turn out.

The principal game across the border on Saturday will be the Yale-Princeton meeting at New Haven, where 60,000 people can be accommodated in the Yale bowl, and the Michigan-Pennsylvania intersectional struggle. Yale and Princeton have both been eliminated from the American honors, and it is not likely that the capacity of the bowl will be taxed. Penn. and Michigan are also second-flighters this season.

HOCKEY TEAM TO START SOON

Many New Players at McGill
This Year.

OPENING GAME DEC. 20

Red and White Will Meet Nationals in City League Fixture.

With the football season coming to a close this afternoon, the McGill students will from now on probably turn their attention to hockey. It is practically an assured fact that there will be no intercollegiate games this year, as Toronto Varsity has decided not to figure in any intercollegiate contests this year, as has also McGill. However, the red and white will have a senior team in operation this year just as in former years, and it is expected that the Queen City students will also have an aggregation on the ice. The McGill players will figure in the City League games, while the blue and white will probably play in the senior section of the Ontario Hockey Association, according to reports from Toronto.

Although the hockey prospects for the coming season are not as encouraging as in the past, still the McGill team is expected to have a successful season. The majority of the players at McGill who showed senior form last year have either gone to the front or left college. The red and white had two stellar net-minders last winter, but these have both left McGill. "Monty" Montgomery having gone to the front with the McGill Base Hospital, while "Shorty" Mann has graduated and is now a full-fledged doctor. This leaves a big hole on the McGill defence, as it will be remembered that it was mainly through the good work of McGill's goalkeeper that the red and white held their opponents down to such small scores last winter. One of the men expected to turn out and try for a place in the nets is "Ski" Scott, of Science '18. Scott played on the McGill second team last year, and if he shows the expected improvement, he will have an excellent chance of securing the position in goal for the red and white.

Of the other defence players on last year's team, "Terry" Hall is now serving with the 5th Mounted Rifles, while Morris is at the front with the First Universities Company. To take their places, the red and white will have to find men of real senior calibre. Heney, who played on the Ottawa College team last winter, is at present attending McGill, and looks to have a splendid chance of gaining a position as a regular. Fraser, a student in Science, who captained the Dalhousie University hockey team last winter, is also expected to turn out with the red and white team, and if he can show form will get on. He is said to be a fast and tricky player, who does not "hog" the puck, but who is always working for the benefit of the team.

It is particularly on the forward line that McGill will have to seek new material. Andrews, of last year's team, is of course again available, while Kelsch, who also figured in a few games last winter, is also at McGill. "Len" Rainboth and Eric Parsons, who were the best men of the McGill forward line, are not attending the university this year. The former has secured a commission in the army, while the latter is working at Lynn, Mass. To try and replace these men, Madden, another player of last year's Ottawa College outfit, will probably turn out, as will also McCullough, of last year.

The latter figured on the McGill second team last year, and showed good form at times. If he shows any improvement, he will undoubtedly stand a good chance of making the team.

With the opening of the Arena for skating to-night, it is expected that the McGill players will be able to start practising much earlier this year than last. This will give the players a good opportunity of getting into form, so that poor condition should not be a factor when the red and white aggregation will step on the ice on December 20 against Nationals, whom they are scheduled to meet in the opening game.

HOCKEY DATES NOW ARRANGED

Princeton Will Start on Dec. 22
And End on Feb. 23.

A Princeton despatch says: The Princeton University hockey team will start the season with seven of last year's regulars. Although the schedule has not been fully completed, a dozen games have already been arranged. The first is with St. Paul's school at Concord, N.H., at New York, on December 22. During the December holidays the team will go to Pittsburgh, where three practice games will be played with Yale on December 28, 29 and 30. An invitation has been received from the St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., to spend five days of January there. The schedule:

Dec. 18, open; 22, St. Paul's School at New York; 28, 29, 30, Yale at Pittsburgh.
Jan. 1-5, at St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H. (uncertain); 5, Dartmouth at Boston (probable); 8, Williams at New York; 12, open; 15, Harvard at Boston; 19, Yale at New York; 22, Harvard at New York.
Feb. 12, Dartmouth at New York; 16, Yale at New Haven; 19, Harvard at New York (in case of tie); 23, Yale at New Haven.

WILL BE MISSED ON THE FIELD.

Ewart Wheeler, who had his leg broken while playing for the Toronto Junior Meds in a Mulock Cup game on Saturday, played with the Kew Beach O.R.F.U. junior team last season. He is a clever running and kicking back-field player, and the Meds will miss him in their remaining games.

PRINCETON AND YALE TO CLASH

Big Rugby Contest to be Staged in Bowl.

PRINCETON FAVORED

Have Shown Much Better Form
Than Opponents in Previous Matches.

New Haven, Nov. 11. — The Yale coaches who went to Princeton on Saturday to see the Harlowed Princeton contest did not bring back encouraging reports in regard to Yale's chances against the Tigers. All the old Yale players who saw the game seem to rate this the best Princeton team of recent years.

After Yale's showing in the Brown game the outlook for the Blue is by many considered practically hopeless. The effect of this feeling began to make itself felt to-day when many graduates set back their tickets for the Princeton game here on Saturday. As an old player put it, he does not care to see Yale go into a game certain to be defeated.

While the coaches themselves have little to say, they do not regard the chances as altogether hopeless.

Others who have followed the situation carefully cannot figure out anything except two more defeats for Capt. Wilson's team. The worst-worried man is the Yale captain himself. Wilson has taken the defeats of the team very much to heart, and most of his friends attribute the falling off in his playing to this fact.

The coaches are not letting up in their efforts. They are going to keep up the work night and day right up to the Harvard game. The players are still determined and willing to work.

There is a feeling that the Yale defence will stiffen up considerably this week, but the offence seems more doubtful. The team lacks cohesion, and the time is very short for the development of team play.

The kicking game is certain to trouble Yale against the punting of Driggs of Princeton, or Mahan, of Harvard.

For three hours this afternoon Shevlin, Lilley, Bigelow, and Kistler kept the Yale players on the jump, going over the faults in the Brown game, besides perfecting the shift that showed so much promise Saturday.

The new style of offence, upon which rests Yale's only chance of victory, has been neither fully understood nor executed by the backfield. Shevlin still holds this card up his sleeve.

Just what the ultimate style of attack will be no one seems to know, and this very uncertainty will at least serve to worry Coach Rush, of Princeton, and keep him wondering whether or not Yale will offer stiff opposition on next Saturday.

As the injury to "Mal" Scovill's thumb has proved more serious than at first reported, Otis Guernsey took the big fullback's place, and unless Scovill's injured member heals sufficiently to allow his playing Saturday, Guernsey will be found at fullback in the big game.

With Guernsey and Savage the only kickers on the team who can approach Driggs in punting ability, it is evident that one of these men will have to be used.

Princeton will be a 5 to 3 favorite over Yale in the game. Those were the odds to be had about New York betting places to-day, and it is the first time in years that a blue eleven has gone against the Tigers so heavily in disfavour.

The Tigers probably would be still greater favorites were it not for tradition and its effect on the betting fraternity. Numerous times in the last ten years the Tigers have shown themselves to be the best team in early games, only to succumb to the fury of a Blue attack. Yale fights harder against Princeton and Harvard than against any other opponent. Heavy betting on the score is reported. The consensus of opinion evidently is that the Tigers will not win by more than two touchdowns, if they win at all. The accomplishments of Tom Shevlin in this week's stay at New Haven are more or less shrouded in mystery.

Not only is Cornell going to grab off team honors in the east this year, but she is also going to have the individual star, if Charley Barrett continues his sensational point getting way. The Ithaca leader today leads all eastern footballers for the number of points scored. He has made fifteen touchdowns and kicked nineteen goals, for a grand total of 109 points.
